

16 March 2011

Zach,

What you've got is excellent, and you've got a lot. If you look at the notes, I made, they're mostly nitpicks—which means I couldn't find anything to really complain about. You said you're worried about your intro, but I think it does its job of familiarizing the reader with the topics at hand very nicely. Great job so far.

I think your plan of doing actual concrete research – the surveys – is great and will really bolster the value of your paper (though the discussion you already have makes it very valuable). You and Hope both mention that you've had a hard time finding scholarly writing about Facebook. That's because it's being written right now, by people like the two of you! Continue doing as great of a job on this paper as you have been so far, and I don't doubt your research will be useful to future students and researchers.

Bravo,

John Pray